Due to individual state regulations involving online education, The King's University admissions are not available in all states. TKU researches the most current section codes, status, contact information, and documents correspondence history for each state, providing documented evidence of compliance with each state's authorization requirements as necessary. Please consult with your Admissions contact to confirm that your desired program is available in your state of residence.

The above table shows:

- States where TKU has obtained authorization to operate.
- States that are approved as a SARA (State Authorization Reciprocity Agreement). State. The State of Texas has applied to become an approved SARA state, and TKU intends to meet state authorization requirements by participating in this regional compact. For more information on the regional compact, visit www.nc-sara.org
- States which do not require authorization for schools offering distance education and associated field experience.
- States that TKU is not admitting distance students due to current state restrictions.
